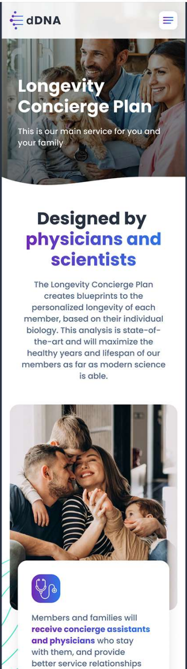
DNA Biobank

Our facility can store physical samples of your DNA for 20 years or longer with our shelf-stable storage method.

Why is the biobank important?

When predicting an individuals possible diseases, family history is incredibly important. While you or a family member is alive, it is easy to collect a viable DNA sample for testing when needed. When a person dies, however, access to their DNA becomes more difficult and uncertain. When the DNA can not be recovered, their precious information will be lost, which can be especially troubling when searching for clues of disease in relatives.



Longevity Concierge Plan

This is our main service for you and your family

Designed by physicians and scientists

The Longevity Concierge Plan creates blueprints to the personalized longevity of each member, based on their individual biology. This analysis is state-of-the-art and will maximize the healthy years and lifespan of our members as far as modern science is able.

Members and families will receive concierge assistants and physicians who stay with them, and provide better service relationships

Why is the biobank important?

Our stable storage method was originally designed for the industrial transport of DNA across oceans and large land distances, with varieties of altitudes and climates.

It will keep DNA completely stable even during large temperature and humidity changes. When kept in the stable environment of our secure sample vault, it can remain perfectly preserved for decades.

How it works

Entering the DNA Biobank is identical to the easy swab kit used by our members, although non-members will not receive the longevity reports and continuity.

We never stop improving the Longevity Concierge Plan - more reports, biomarkers, and services will always be around the corner.

All members of the Longevity Concierge Plan also receive the DNA Biobanking service.

Today's problem

Diseases begin as risks you can't feel

Everyone has a unique risk profile, but most people are not equipped with the data to cure their deadliest diseases at the right time - early.

Coordinating family testing and data takes time

Today's platforms do not accommodate family testing features to make onboarding generations of people as easy as it should be.

People see an impossible knowledge gap

Even most physicians do not understand the basics of DNA or other critical but new biomarkers. Most clinical tests abandon the user at education.

There is no medical longevity experience that keeps continuity of care, feedback and education after testing. We fix that.

Our mission

The change

Creating longevity with pre-symptom healthcare becomes normal healthcare, with dDNA adding healthy decades to families everywhere.

The method

Opening access to cutting-edge, clinically actionable biomarkers that reveal personal health roadmaps, and doctors that know how to use them.
